

Rodney was small but his dreams were enormous.
So enormous, in fact, they towered high above him.

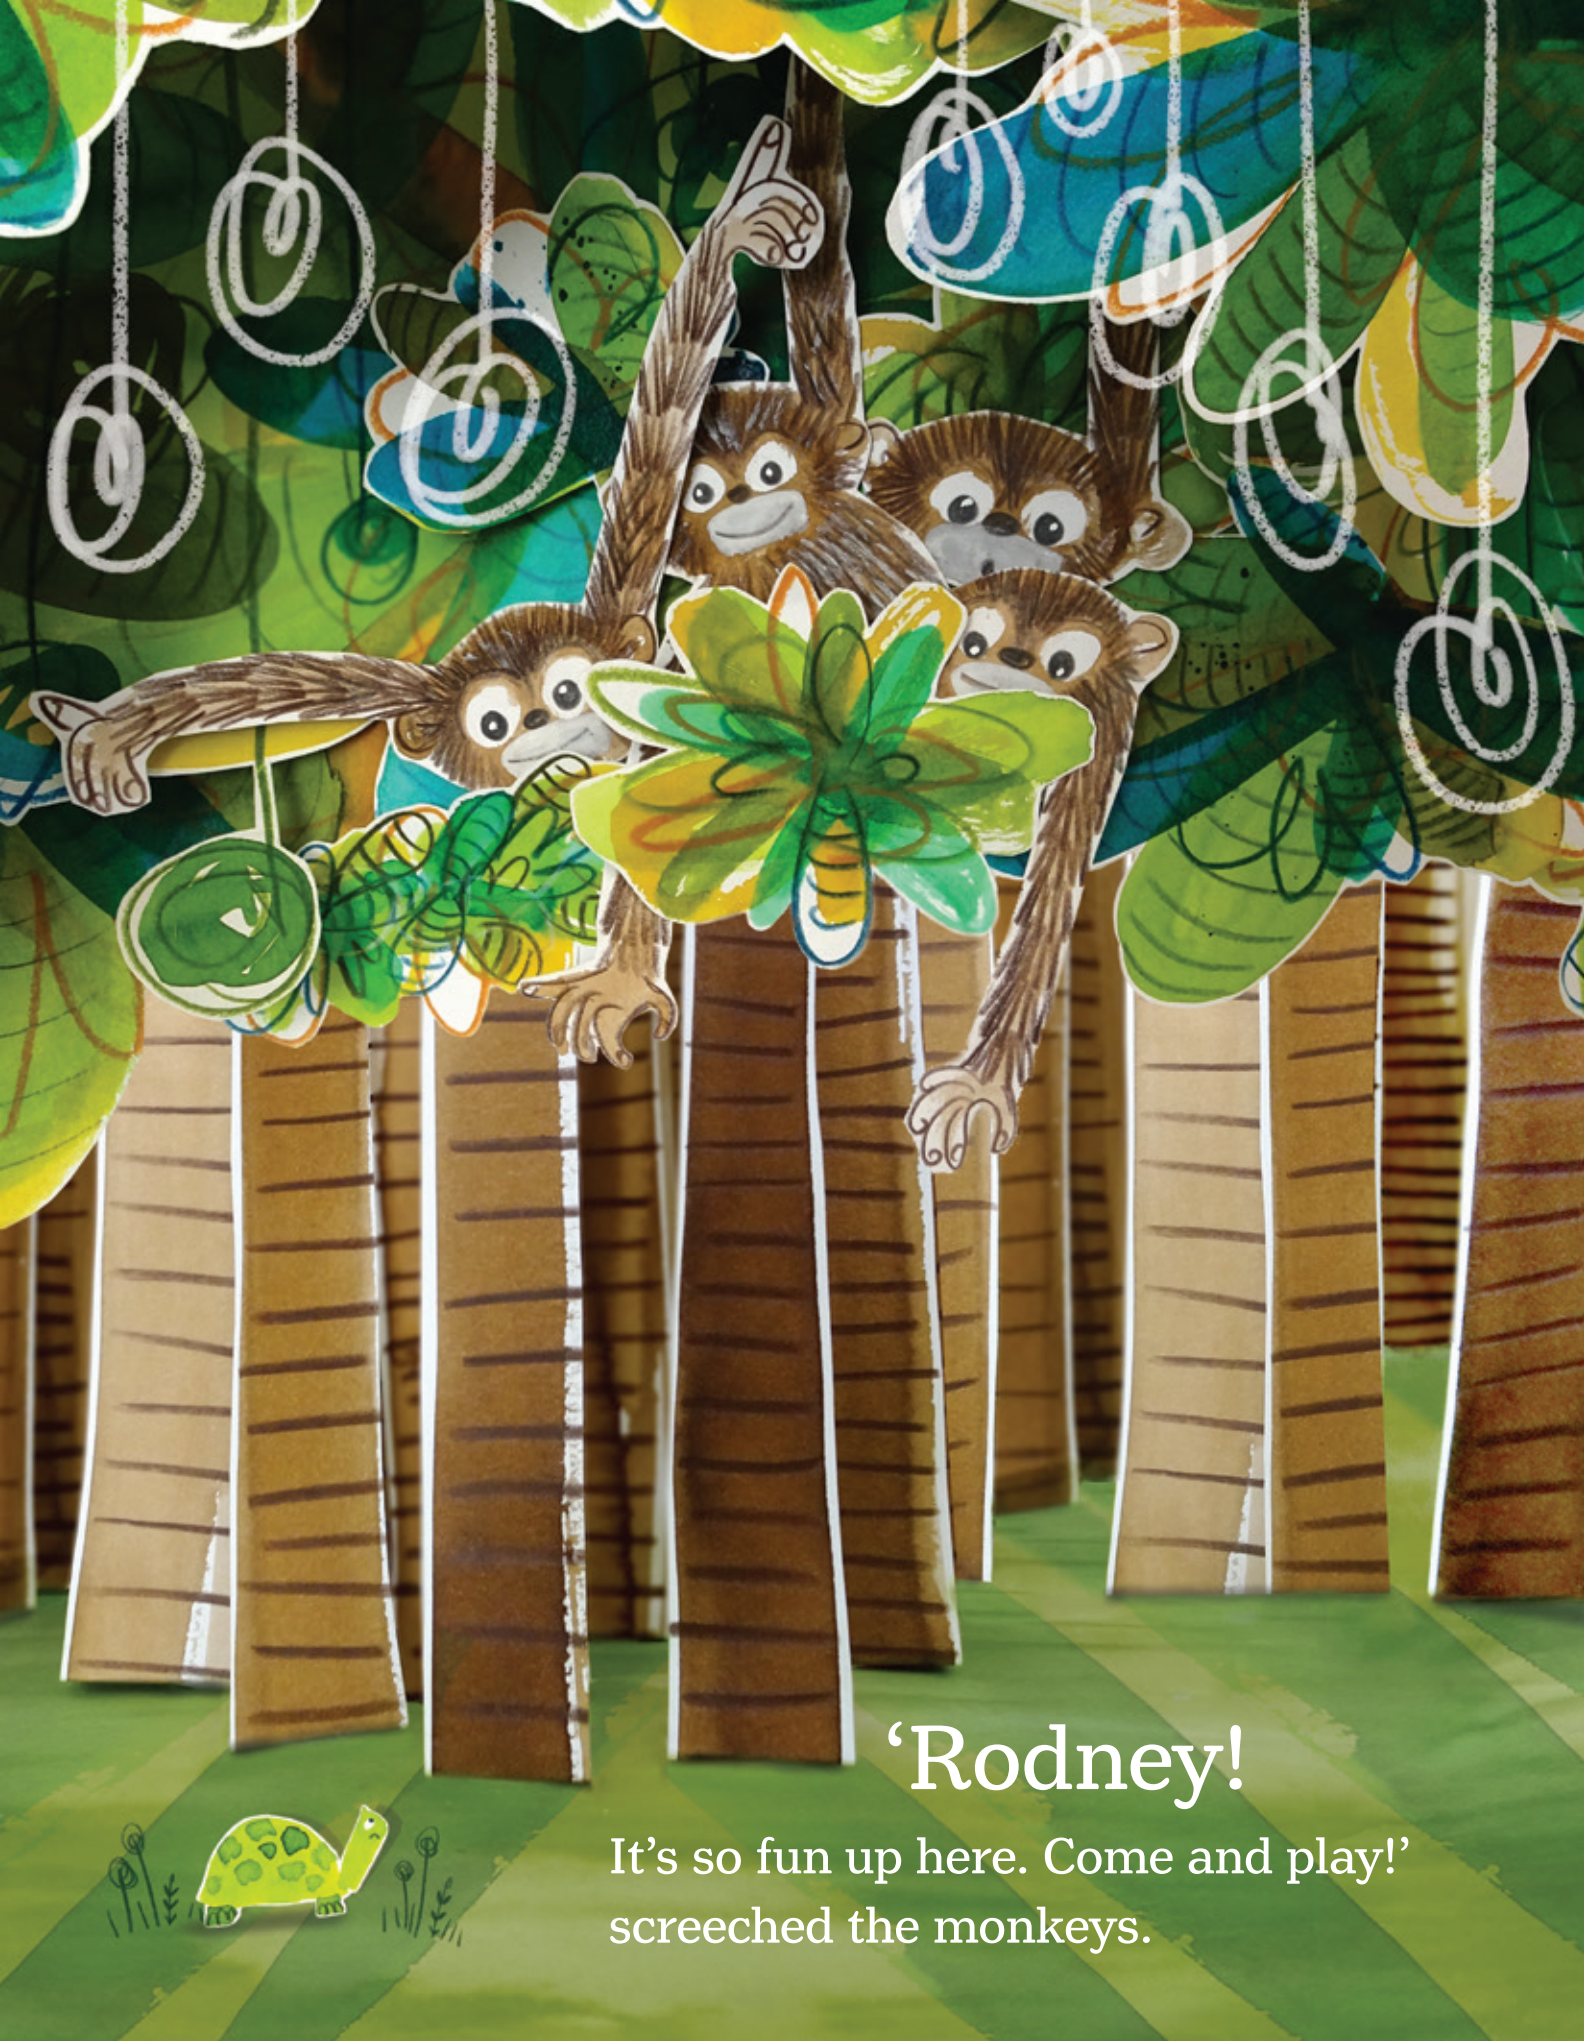

All Rodney had ever wanted,

all he'd ever dreamed about,

was to know a life

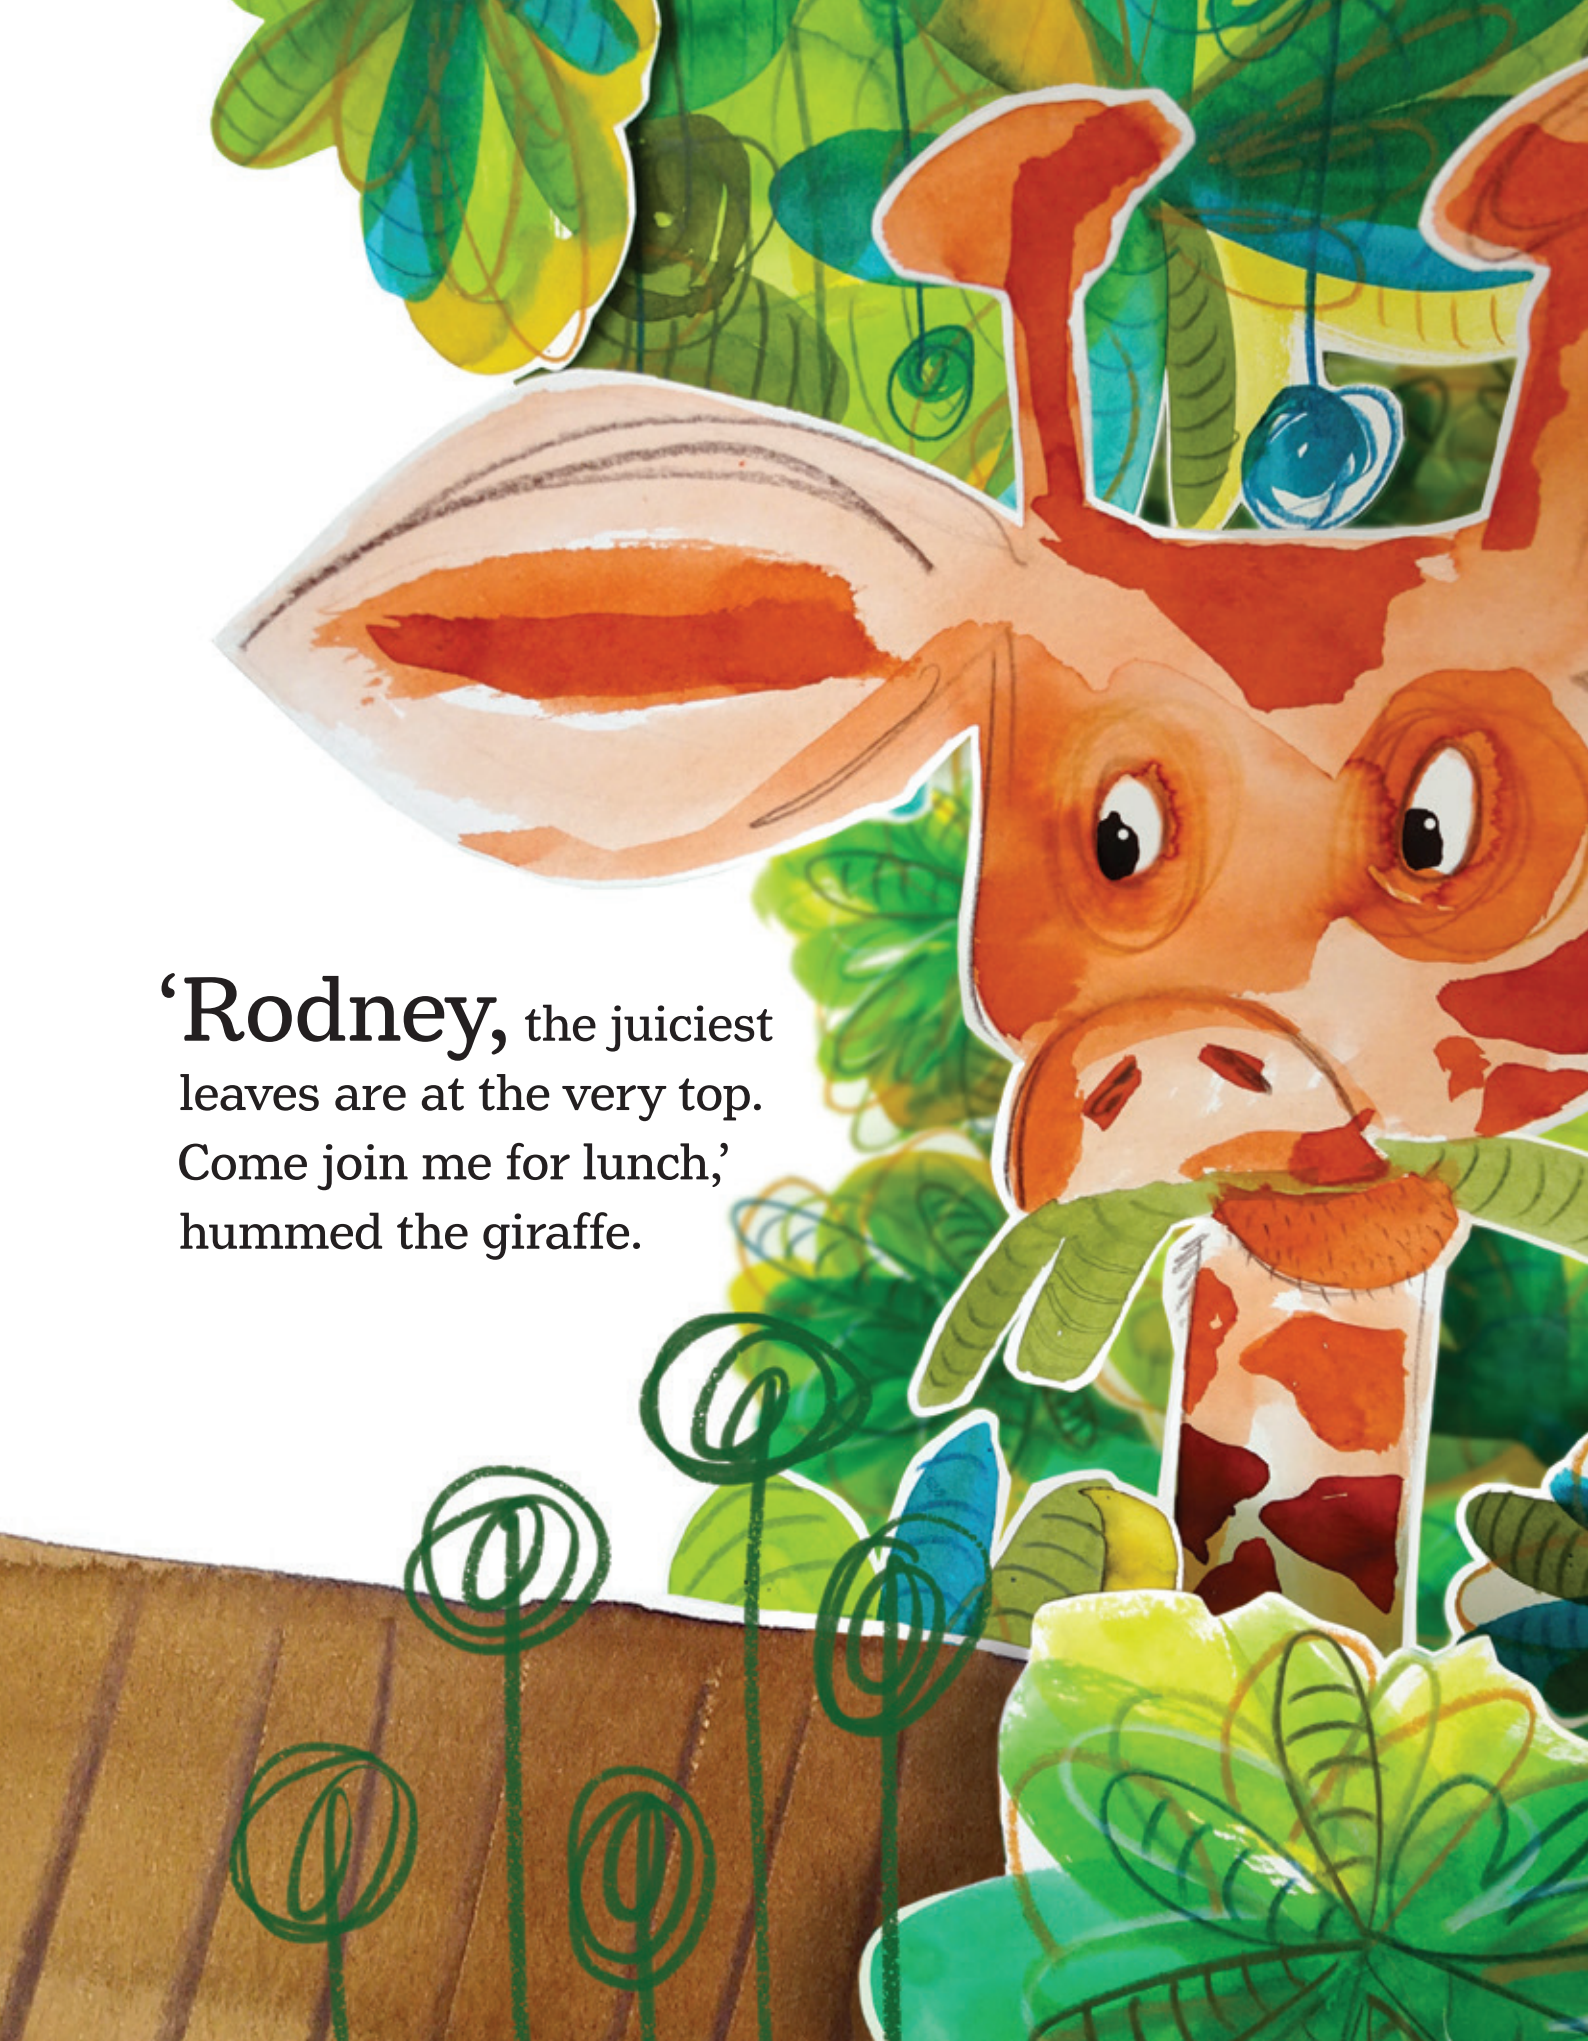

high

among the treetops.

‘Rodney!

It’s so fun up here. Come and play!’
screeched the monkeys.

‘Rodney, the juiciest
leaves are at the very top.
Come join me for lunch,’ hummed the giraffe.

‘Rodney,
we can see the ocean
from our homes. Come up and take a look!’
sang the birds.

But Rodney couldn't play up high or eat the juiciest leaves

or join the birds
on a branch
with an ocean view.

Rodney could barely see over the weeds growing at his feet.
